

ALL IN Brief

December 2, 2013

To: UF College of Dentistry,

I wanted to provide an update on progress for the accreditation process. One of the most important events during the self-study phase of preparing for accreditation is the mock site visit. A mock site visit is just what it sounds like - a pretend site visit that functions almost like a dress rehearsal for a theatrical event. We bring in three mock inspectors that will go through an accreditation site visit and provide feedback regarding any weaknesses or potential trouble spots that they identify during their visit.

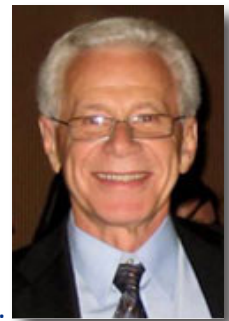

Our last accreditation was in February 2008. Our mock site visit was in summer 2007 and we received valuable feedback that led to important changes in our self-study process and the self-study document we provided to the "real" site visitors.

Our mock site visit is scheduled for July 8 - 10, 2014; just eight months away. We selected the team so we would have a balanced group with expertise in research, education and clinical care.
